Form 1: Moving In Checklist

Questions to Ask Before Renting an Apartment

- What utilities are included in the rent?
  - heat
  - electricity
  - hot water
  - gas

- When will the apartment be available?

- Is there a tenant in the apartment now?
  If so, when will she be moving out?

- Is the landlord planning to make any repairs to the apartment after the current tenant moves out, and if so, which repairs?

- Does the apartment have any lead paint in it or has it been inspected for lead paint? (This is important if you are pregnant or have any children under the age of six.)

- If you have a car, what are the parking arrangements?

Things to Check Out Before You Rent an Apartment

- Turn on all the faucets in the bathroom and kitchen all the way (including the shower and the bathtub).
  Is there hot and cold water?
  How is the pressure?
  Is the water discolored?
  Do the drains work properly?

- Is there a refrigerator? (Note: Landlords are not required by law to provide refrigerators. But, if they do, they must keep them in good condition.)

- Flush the toilet.
  Does it work?
  Does it fill up properly?

- Flip the light switches and see if the lights go on. Are there at least two electrical outlets OR one electrical outlet and a light fixture in each room?

- Are there any exposed wires?
Are the windows weathertight (which means you cannot feel drafts of air through them coming from outside)?
Do they open and close?
Do they have screens?

Are the walls, floors, and ceilings in good condition?
Any cracks, holes, or signs of leaking?

Look for any evidence of bugs or rodents (such as dead bugs, mouse droppings, bait and/or traps)?

Are there at least two exits?
Are they blocked in any way?

If the apartment is above the first floor, are there fire escapes?

Is there a smoke detector and a carbon monoxide detector?

Are there locks on the outside doors and windows?
Do they work?

Is there a mailbox?

If it is heating season (September 15-June 15), does the heat work?
Can you control the heat?

Is there a common entrance?
Does it have a working lock?
Is there good lighting?

Things to Do When You Move into a New Apartment

- If you’re paying a security deposit, do a walk-through with the landlord and bring to her attention any issues that you see. Write the problems on the Statement of Conditions if the landlord gives you one. If not, send the landlord a list of the problems that existed when you moved in and keep a copy for yourself.

- Take pictures of any problems in the apartment that exist when you move in and save them in case the landlord tries to blame you for the problems later.

- Get a folder and put all the documents from your tenancy in it – your receipts for rent and security deposit, copies of any letters you sent to your landlord and any correspondence from your landlord to you, and your tenancy agreement (if there is one). That way everything is in one place so you can find these important documents in case you need to prove later that you paid your rent or that you told the landlord about problems in your home.
Form 3: Statement of Condition

How to Use This Form
If your landlord takes a security deposit from you, she is required by law to give you a Statement of Condition. If she does not, you can use the form on the next page to document the condition of your apartment when you first move in.

How to Fill Out This Form
When you first move in, examine every room of the place you are renting and all the common areas you share with other tenants. Use Booklet 2: Housing Code Checklist to help you. It will tell you what to look for.

As you examine each room, write down any problems that you see.

Date and sign this statement.

Make a copy for your records and send a copy to your landlord.

Note: If there are conditions that are serious, you should notify your landlord as soon as possible. If there are only minor problems (such as small holes in the wall), you may want to consider waiting until you have been in your apartment for awhile, have paid the rent, and your landlord sees that you are a responsible tenant before you give her this statement. You should still, however, complete the statement as soon as you move in and indicate even minor problems in the statement.
STATEMENT OF CONDITION

TO: __________________________________ RE: __________________________________
Landlord Unit #

_________________________________ ______________________________________
Address Address

_________________________________ ______________________________________
City Zip City Zip

This is a statement of the condition of the premises listed above as of ____________ (date) when I moved in.

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

Date: __________________________________

Tenant Signature: ________________________